One of the most interesting engagements ansounced last week was that of Miss Julia Dent Grant, the only daughter of Brigadier-General Frederick D. Grant, to Prince Michel Cantacuzene, of the Russian Imperial Guard. Miss Grant abroad with her aunt, Mrs. Potter Palmer, who last at the Hotel Ritz, Paris, in honor of the mother of the Prince, at which formal announce-ment was made of the betrothal of the young peopie. The entertainment was attended by General Horace Porter, the United States Ambassador, and Mrs. Porter, Ferdinand W. Peck, the United States Commissioner-General to the Paris Exposition of 1900, and Mrs. Peck, as well as other prominent members of the American colony in Paris. Miss Grant, who has been travelling in Europe and Egypt with her aunt, Mrs. Palmer, since last fall, is well known in society in New-York and Newas well as at Bar Harbor, where Mrs. Palmer a few seasons ago leased a cottage. Miss Grant and Mrs. Paimer intend to return to this Grant and Mrs. Paimer intend to return to this country early in June, and they will spend the summer at Newport. General and Mrs. Grant are now in the West, the General having been offered to Manila. The wedding will not take place unto next fall, and possibly later. Prince Cantacuzene, who has also the title of Count Speransky, is now the Military Attaché of the Russian Embassy at Rome. He is young about twenty-five years old, and is related on the maternal side to the late Prince Gortschakoff, who a quarter of a century ago was "the Grand Old Man of Russia," being Grand Chanceller of Russia and Minister of Foreign Relations. The young Prince is also re-lated to Prince Cantacuzene, who four years ago was the Russian Minister at Washington. He is said to be unusually talented and rich.

The annual meeting of the Society of the Colonial Dames of America was held at the home of Miss Julia Livingston Delafield, No. 475 Fifth-ave., on Monday last, May 1, in commemoration (as provided by the constitution of the society) of the in-States. Noticeable among the members present of the first Congress, as well as of Washington. Hamilton, Livingston, Morris, Boudinot, King. Lee. Cadwalader, Schuyler and others. Conspicuous features of the public work accomplished by this society during 1898 were the raising of many thousands of dollars for the sick and wounded soldiers of the Spanish war, the personal labor of individual members in the diet kitchens at Montauk, the publication of the "Letters to Washington," so favorably reviewed throughout the country; the placing of a tablet to Washington in Baltimore and of a tablet of Clinton at Kingston, and the restoration of the old Swedes Church at Wilmington. The teas given by Miss Hamilton and Miss Delafield, the entertainment at the Metropolitan Club, given by Mrs. Rutherfurd, the juncheon by the Board of Managers at Sherry's on Monday last, and the breakfast by Mrs. Stryker, of Trenton, N. J., at Delmonico's would show it is not all work with this society, but that the Colonial Dames of America commemorate the partiot fathers in good, hospitable, time-honored fashion. UNOFFICIAL CALL TO MR. HARRISON.

REPORTED ACTION OF THE COMMITTEE OF TRUS-TEES OF TEMPLE EMANU-EL. The committee of trustees of Temple Emanu-El, Pifth-ave, and Forty-fourth-st., having in charge the securing of a successor to the Rev. Dr. Gustav Gotthell, it is reported, has extended an unofficial call to the Rev. Leon Harrison, rabbi of Temple Israel. St. Louis. It may be remembered that the congregation itself extended a call some time since to the Rev. Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, of Chicago. This call was accepted, and afterward the acceptance was withdrawn.

It was said at the services at Temple Emanu-El yesterday that the unofficial call to the St. Louis rabbi was merely to find out whether the call, if rabbi was merely to find out whether the call, if extended, would be considered. So far no encouragement whatever has been received.

The Rev. Leon Harrison was born in Manchester, England, thirty-three years ago, but early in life came to this country. He was trained in New-York by the Emanu-El Seminary Association, and took a course at Columbia University. Going West, he became rabbi of Temple Israel, a leading congregation of St. Louis, although he has never been graduated from a theological seminary. He has been there six years, and is described as an eloquent preacher, and a man of advanced views and progressive methods. According to the arrangement made when the Rev. Dr. Hirsch was called, the Rev. Dr. Gotthell was to retire to become rabbi emeritus on May 1, but it is said he will remain until October.

man Sereno E. Payne, the House committee has prepared a currency bill which it will submit to the Senate committee. A joint meeting of the Senate and House committees has been prevented by the absence of Mr. Aldrich.

Mr. Aldrich said to a Tribune reporter yesterday that he had been resting while in Europe, and had avoided any attention to business.

"I shall take this currency husiness up just as soon as possible." he said. "I know absolutely nothing about what the Congressmen have done, but the Senate committee will hold a meeting in the next few weeks, and then we will read the House committee's report, and a joint meeting will probably follow. Then we will get right down to business on this question."

New-Orleans, May 6 (Special) .- Mr. Earle's denial of his part in the Marcel picture deal has caused much surprise here, as there are numerous witnesses to prove the story. The $5,000 which the negro Marcel received from Mr. Earle was paid in the presence of N. T. Browne, general superintendent of the American Express Company here. Mr. Earle himself paid the $333 35 express charges, and, furthermore, the day previous came in person and made all the arrangements for the transportation of the all the arrangements for the transportation of the pictures. Mr. Earle sent Marcel no less than four telegrams from Baltimore regarding the transaction, announcing his coming and telling the negro not to make any other disposition of the works before his arrival. These telegrams have been seen by a representative of "The Times-Democrat."

The annual meeting of the Union Club is ap-Van Rensselaer's guests were Miss Ellen proaching, and the annual rumors about removing the clubhouse have been revived. doubtedly a strong sentiment in the club in favor of moving to some point further uptown, but so far this sentiment has always been voted down when it comes to a test at the annual meeting. This year the members that favor moving are divided among themselves as to what would be the best locality fo the club, and it is said this indecision will cause another failure of the attempt to get the club to adopt resolution providing for removal.

For some time there has been gossip that the club might consolidate with the Metropolitan and move into the latter's handsome home, at Fifthand Sixtieth-st. It is no secret among clubmen that the Metropolitan Club is not in a flourishing condition financially. While its membership is large and its members are a substantial class of men, the members do not go to the club to any great extent, and to flourish a club must have the liberal patronage of at least a majority of its members. Undoubtedly there is a strong element in Metropolitan Club that would like to see the clubs consolidated, and the matter has been discussed, but no authoritative decision has been reached.

The subject of increasing the dues is also to be discussed at the annual meeting of the Union, it is said. The present dues are $75 a year. Several clubs, including the University, have found this amount insufficient, and when the University Club moved from its old home and prepared to go into the new Fifth-ave, house it was found necessary to raise the dues.

There are, aside from the proposition to consolidate with the Metropolitan Club, other plans under consideration by the members of the Union. Cerconsideration by the members of the Union. Certain members think that inasmuch as the Manhattan Club has vacated the Stewart mansion, at Fifth-ave, and Thirty-fourth-st., that house would be suitable for it. Others favor buying property at Fifth-ave, and Forty-first-st, and erecting a clubhouse there. All of these subjects have been discussed, a member said yesterday, and each plan has its supporters, but nothing authoritative can be announced, as no decision has been reached. The subjects will undoubtedly, it is said, come up at the annual meeting, but just now the matters are confined to private consultations among the members. The subject of increasing the dues however, is a timely one, and it is intimated that some action will be taken by the club providing for this, and that possibly the dues will be increased to $150 a year.

"MR. DOOLEY" IN NEW-YORK.

Peter F. Dunne, the author of "Mr. Dooley in Peace and War," is in New-York, paying a brief visit to the city before sailing for Europe next Wednesday. Mr. Dunne is a quiet, retiring man, with a slight hesitation in his speech. This will be his first trip abroad, and he is looking forward to it with keen zest. He expects to visit Ireland, Scotland and England. Afterward he will visit France and Rome, and will probably return here in September.

MRS. SCHUYLER HAMILTON, JR., BURIED. The funeral of Mrs. Jane Byrd Mercer Hamilton, second wife of Schuyler Hamilton, jr., who died on Wednesday from the effects of an overdose of morphine, taken to relieve pain, at the Florence Hotel, in Eighteenth-st. and Fourth-ave., was held at Calvary Episcopal Church, in Fourth-ave, and Trwenty-first-st, yesterday morning. Only the immediate relatives were present. The services were conducted by the rector of the church, the Rev. Dr. J. Lewis Parks. The casket was covered with broadcloth, and there were no flowers. Whitney returned. It was announced that the funeral of Mrs. Whitney would be held at the Garden City Cathedral on Tuesday at 10 o'clock Bishop Littlejohn will officiate.

When Mrs. Whitney lapsed into unconsciousness on Friday two specialists were summoned from this city, and they held a consultation, but informed the members of the family that Mrs. Whitney had not long to live. There was not much sleep in the Whitney household on Friday night, and the trained nurses, as well as Mr. Whitney, watched the patient during the night. The favorable signs they looked for did not appear, and Mr. Whitney gradually gave up hope of his wife's recovery.

Until yesterday morning it was generally believed about Roslyn and in the surrounding villages that Mrs. Whitney was constantly improving, and had almost completely recovered from her injury. The news yesterday morning that she had been unconscious all of Friday and was dying came as a shock. In the afternoon many of the prominent residents of Wheatley Hills and Westbury called at the house to express and Westbury called at the house to express their condolence.

It was only on Saturday last that the Meadow Brook Steeplechase Association held its annual meeting on the Whitney estate. The races were started from under the window of the room in which Mrs. Whitney was, so that she could see them. She was feeling well that day, but on Sunday began to lose strength, and continued to grow weaker until she sank into the coma which immediately preceded her death.

Mr. Whitney received many telegrams and other expressions of sympathy from political, business and personal friends yesterday afternoon and evening.

There was a report current last evening that after the funeral of Mrs. Whitney the ex-Secretary would close his Long Island home, but this could not be verified.

ACCIDENT THAT WAS FINALLY FATAL HOW MRS. WHITNEY WAS HURT AT AIKEN-HER SOCIAL CAREER.

Mrs. Whitney met with the accident which finally caused her death while riding to Thomas Hitch-cock's deerhounds at Alken, S. C., in February. The field she was riding with was a distinguished one, including Lord as who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Whitney; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Havemeyer (Mr. Havemeyer has since died), Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Eillot, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Smith and other members of the winter colony at Alken. A pet deer was set loose for the sport of the assembled hunters, and the riding was exciting and hard. Mrs. Whitney, who was a capital horsewoman, was mounted on a large horse of the steeplechase build. Her usual mount was a small horse. She rode with great spirit, close at the heels of Mr. Whitney, until the homestretch, where the accident occurred. At a point known as Robinson's Pond there is a shed, and through the archway underneath this superstructure raced the frightened deer, followed by the dogs and the hunters, most of whom ducked their heads to avoid the plate bear of the shed as they passed underneath.

Mr. Whitney, fully realizing that his wife was on a much taller horse than she was accustomed to ride, turned to warn her of the shed, but it was too late. In an upright position, with head and eyes directed toward the deer and hounds, she charged straight at the entrance of the arch. She was swept backward and her mount galloped riderless underneath the shed.

Mrs. Whitney lay upon the ground with an open wound in the top of her head. She was uncon-scious. Dr. Valentine Mott, one of the riders, was soon at her side, but he could do little for her until soon at her side, but he could do little for her untishe was carried to the Jayne cottage, Mr. Whitney's home, quite two miles away. The condition of Mrs. Whitney demanded superior medical and surgical skill, and Mr. Whitney wired to this city for Dr. C. L. Dana to "take special train and not to lose a moment." One of the fastest locomotives owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company was ought into requisition, and the physician, on board of a Pullman car, was soon flying Southward. The express time between this city and Aiken is twentyfour hours, but the train carrying Dr. Dana heat the schedule time by ten hours.

At Mr. Whitney's house Dr. Dana found the patient in the hands of Dr. Mott, Dr. C. S. Bull and a number of local practitioners. Eminent specialists were summoned, and at first were puzzled, owing to the extreme obscurity of the symptoms. It was announced that she was suffering from a fracture of the second vertebra. An appliance resembling a cage was devised, and in this Mrs. Whitney's head rested constantly day and night. She was paralyzed to a great extent, and could move only her fingers to a great extent, and could move only her fingers very slightly. She improved slowly until the spring, when the warm climate of the South proved weakening and made it necessary to bring her North.

Dr. Bull went to Aiken from this city and personally superintended the arranging of the drawing-room car as a perfect hospital on wheels. The chief feature of this was the placing of a brass bedstead in the middle of the car, so fixed that nothing could displace it. In this bed Mrs. Whitney was placed upon a pneumatic mattress, so connothing could displace it. In this bed Mrs. Whitney was placed upon a pneumatic mattress, so constructed that none of the jarring or joiting of railroad travel could disturb her. In this car the patient made the journey from Alken to this city. Mrs. Whitney endured the long trip with remarkable success, and continued to improve while confined at her home, No. 24 West Fifty-seventh. confined at her home. No. 24 West Fifty-seventhst. until the warm weather began to rob her of her strength, and then it was determined to remove her to Mr. Whitney's country pince on the Wheatley Hills, near Westbury, Long Island. This move was made in June last. In this journey Mrs. Whitney had to be driven two miles through the city streets, to cross the East River on a ferryboat, to ride twenty-two miles by rail, and then in a carride twenty-two miles by rail, and then in a carride twenty-two miles by rail, and then in a carride twenty-two miles by rail, and then in a carride twenty-two miles by rail, and then in a carride twenty-two miles and a hair miles from the station to her kome. Although her neck and shoulders were incased in plaster of paris, and her head was held in a steel framework to prevent her moving even the smallest fractional part of an inch, she did not suffer, and the journey was accomplished without bad results.

The country air appeared to agree with Mrs.
Whitney, but it wha not many weeks when the heat became too intense for her, and Mr. Whitney was advised to remove her to his cottage at Bar Harbor. Great preparations were made for this journey, and it was accomplished with results most gratifying to the patient. Mr. Whitney and

Her condition was favorable until Wednesday afternoon, when a change came, and, notwithstanding that she was attended night and by Dr. Allen Thomas and a staff of physiclans, she died vesterday morning. The infants are to her family. She spent the last winter, or at least a portion of it, with her father and mother, at the Waldorf-Astoria, they having rented their home in West Fifty-sixth-st. to Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mortimer. On Saturday, April 29, the family again took possession of their house, and Mr. and Mrs. Rogers were to have been their guests until they left town for their country place at Oswego, years ago. She was introduced to society about two years ago, and during her short caree debutante her a beauty and accomplishments made her a prime favorite in her circle of friends. Her engagement to Lebbeus Harding Rogers, jr., was announced in March a year ago, while Mr. Rogers was still at Yale, from which university he was graduated last year. The marriage took place in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church on May 17 of last year, and the wedding reception at the home and Mrs. Conde was attended by several hundred guests. Considerable publicity was forced upon the Conde uated from a fashionable school in this city two considerable publicity was forced upon the Conde family in the summer of 1897, by the persistent statement of Emsign George L. P. Stone, of the United States Navy, that he was engaged to Miss Marie Doreas Conde and the intimation that they were kept apart by cruel parents. Mr. Conde indignantly denied that his daughter was engaged to Ensign Stone. She had accepted some attention from the young ensign, but had declined his proposal of marriage in deference to the objections of her parents.

Ensign Stone made repeated efforts to see the posal of marriage in deference to the objections of her parents.

Ensign Stone made repeated efforts to see the young woman, not only in this city, but in Oswego, where she spent the summer. Ensign Stone accompanied by Ensign Osborne, went to Oswego and endeavored, without success, to reach Miss Conde. Both young men returned to their quarters on the monitor Puritan, then stationed at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Mr. Conde, in the mean while, made formal charges to the navai authorities against Ensigns Stone and Osborne of conduct unbecoming gentlemen, and the two young officers were made the subjects of an official investigation, which was held on the fill-fated battle-ship Maine. Both young men were acquitted.

Funeral services will be held at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Conde, No. 6 West Fifty-sixth-st. The burial will take place in Oswego.
